by the vote and by the comments of those opposing his removal.
"I don't believe any other statement from me would be necessary under the circumstances," he said.
AMONG THE first to reach him after the meeting was Councilman Vico who had made the ouster motion. Vico said Eardley was still a commissioner "and I want to get along with him."
While no bill of particulars was offered nor any specific charges of improper activity on the part of Eardley, it was generally believed that he came under Council fire because he abstained from voting on a multi-story building proposed by Harold Thomasian for Torrance Boulevard which did not have the required parking spaces.
EARDLEY explained that he did an early feasibility study for Thomasian on the subject, but was not retained to do the plans. In fact, he told Council members in response to a question from Miller, that he had recommended against cutting the required parking but that his recommendations were not accepted by the developer. Another firm was employed to do the designs which finally came before the city, Eardley said.
Because of his early work on the project, however, Eardley did not participate in the deliberations, he said.

separate car accidents.
Nancy Jane Block, 14, of 20906 Brighton Ave., passenger in a car driven by Gary William Gladys, 17, of 17217 Casimir Ave., suffered minor injuries and was taken to Harbor General Hospital after their sedan collided with a parked vehicle about 1:30 in front of 2325 W. 180th Pl.
IN THE OTHER accident which occurred on Crenshaw Boulevard at 253rd Street, Jerry Harry Little, 30, of Wilmington, suffered major injuries and was taken to Little Company of Mary Hospital after his car struck the center divider guard rail, police said.

Cooperation Called for in CD Programs
Cooperation in the scheduling of civil defense training programs so that they will not conflict has been called for by the Torrance Civil Defense and Disaster Commission.
Commission Chairman E. S. Schoonover recommended that various organizations setting up civil defense programs contact the commission so that the programs can be scheduled so they will not conflict. The commission unanimously approved the recommendation.
After a recent commission meeting, the officials saw the training films, "The Atom Strikes," and "The Price of Freedom."
